

Give a Child a Future

There is a great need in Northern California for communities to support children in foster care and those needing permanent homes through adoption.

- Nationally there are more than 120,000 children waiting to be adopted.
- More than 62,000 children live in foster care in California.
- In Sacramento County, 4,000 children are currently in foster care and hundreds more are waiting to be placed in happy, healthy homes.

Families For Children has more than 20 years of experience helping children find loving, supportive families through adoption and foster care.

You can play a part in supporting children and youth in foster care and building and strengthening the Sacramento community in the following ways:

- Partnering to educate communities about the need for foster care and adoption.
- Financial support.
- Opening your home to a foster child or consider adopting a child from the foster care system.
